If we tell ourselves that we exist, it is because we exist, since otherwise we should not exist.

Being is not necessarily conceivable. We are because we were created from nothing at all. Everything comes from nothing. Life is a miracle.

We see the other's beings. So if we see them and we tell ourselves that we exist, it would be selfish to say that we are the only one who exists, especially since others react to us.

We were created from nothing and we see a lot of other beings like us or not, so everything we see really exists. We will know even more about this when we go into the universe with nuclear engines.

My Notes

Write about others.
